

Coronavirus

February 26th, 2020

Dear Customer,

As we are all aware, the situation regarding the Coronavirus in China continues to impact the entire region and TT Electronics continues to monitor the situation closely, consulting with our Suppliers on a daily basis to mitigate the risk of business disruption as much as possible. We are committed to providing timely information and operational status updates to our customers and supply chain partners as we continue to assess the implications to our supply chain and planned deliveries.

Unfortunately, first feedback from the sites which are at least partially operational, did indicate some major delays which will result in push-outs to our customers open order books.

The enclosed list of open orders provides the most accurate status at this point in time but is subject to change due to the circumstances which are beyond our control.

TT electronics is committed to limit the negative impact to our customers by using express shipments for raw material and finished goods where reasonable as well as using second sources which are not impacted where approved.

We appreciate your understanding and continued support during this difficult time and we will review the situation on a regular basis and keep you informed.

With best regards,

Klaus Zwerschina
